To Whom It May Concern,

The initial settlement that Microsoft made for the schools is very fair. A lot of those schools have Black students attending and they have no computers or what they have are very old. As a Black man from the West Indies living in the United States since 1968 I am fully aware of what is going on. The administrators in those schools rejecting the offer just want the money to spend on other things that will NOT help the students. Also the Apple Computer Company which has a strong monopoly in the public schools is part of the rejection process. For once can we stop playing games and do what is BEST for the students/children. Microsoft is not ripping off the consumer. I know because I am a consumer of their products. Stop playing around and let Microsoft help turn the economy around. Thanks for listening.

Best regards,
